The QGIS sDNA plugin could not find your sDNA installation. Please

- ensure sDNA version 3.0 or later is installed
- ensure the sDNA installation folder is set correctly in Processing -> Options -> Providers -> Spatial Design Network Analysis

Buttons for 'OK' and 'Close' are visible on the dialog. Below the dialog, the plugin's version information is shown: 'Versión instalada: 3.1.1 (en /Users/runonroy/.qgis2/python/plugins/sdna)' and 'Versión disponible: 3.1.1 (en Repositorio oficial de complementos de QGIS)'. At the bottom of the window, a status bar shows coordinates (2582376,982640), scale (1:185,903), and other settings.
